Dr. John Stanko is no stranger to Kenya, having been coming here since 1997. During that time, he has consulted and worked for such organizations as Nairbobi Pentecostal Church, the Kenya Civil Aviation Authority, Catholic Relief Services, the Kenya Wildlife Service, and a host of other organizations. He has also coached and mentored many Kenyan leaders and officials during his many visits to Eastern Africa. His book, So Many Leaders, So Little Leadership, has appeared on the Kenyan best-selling list from time to time.

Now come join Dr. Stanko for an enlightening evening as he visits Kenya once again, this time to share important principles that will help you as a manager, leader or emerging leader come to grips both with your potential and that of those with whom you work. Dr. Stanko will draw heavily on his work with The Pacific Institute in Seattle, USA, and its world-famous cognitive learning principles. Dr. Stanko introduced The Pacific Institute's program called Investment in Excellence to Zimbabwe with great success and now he would like to introduce you to it as well.
